University Pays Knights of Columbus $190,000 for 111 Prospect Ave. Home

The Knights of Columbus, Princeton Council 636, have locked the door of their old stone-and-stucco house at 111 Prospect, and turned the key over to Princeton University.

No decision yet on what will be done with the property, but it was the only piece of land on that side of Prospect not owned by the University, so when it came on the market, the natural thing to do was buy it up.

Selling price: $190,000.

Depending on who you talk to, either membership in the fraternal order for Catholic men has dropped to such a low point that there is no need for a clubhouse, or it's simply more convenient to meet in St. Pauls' Rectory.

Scarcely a historic landmark, the house was built in 1896 by Cap and Gown, one of the University's eating clubs for undergraduates. A kind of way station for various clubs on their way to grander things, it was used by Dial Lodge from about 1908 to 1912. Then it was the home of Gateway Club from 1913 to 1928 and since disbanded. The Knights bought the property in 1932.

The carpenters' union met there for several years, plumbers, too. For a while, it was the day-time home of a nursery school, and there was an occupied apartment upstairs. It's not too far from the University's computer center, so ... who knows?

Incidentally, the property now goes back on the Borough's tax rolls – where it has not been for some 45 years. Non-profit organizations, like the Knights of Columbus, do not have to pay property taxes.

Institute Plans 'Innovative' Houses On Quaker Road Area near Stony Brook

Venturi and Rauch, the firm now engaged in studies for the Borough, has been retained by the Institute for Advanced Study to design houses for about 100 acres of farmland the Institute owns in the Quaker Road-Stony Brook area.

Dr. Harry Woolf, director of the Institute, said he hopes for reports in June or July on feasibility studies now under way by Venturi and by Arthur Collins, developer of "Constitution Hill" in Princeton and Lyon Farm in Greenwich, Conn.

The exact number of houses has not yet been decided on. The study envisions housing in the 1980s, focusing on the year 2000, Dr. Woolf said, adding that the Institute hopes the houses will be innovative in terms of materials and the use of environmental technology.

The Institute also wants houses for a variety of people at various economic levels. Development of the acreage represents a way of filling local need, and providing an income for the Institute, the director said.

No commercial building will be erected on the site, and the Institute Woods will remain untouched. Work is being done under a grant from New Sources of Funding, Inc., a non-profit organization which helps institutions plan and develop their assets.

New Job Is Created by School Board; Assistant Principal Post Is Dropped

By a 7-0 vote Tuesday night (one abstention), the school board wiped out one Assistant Principalship at the high school and created in its place a new job: Director of Secondary Instruction.

When Sally MacFarlane, from the audience, protested that she'd never heard a word of discussion about the move from the school board and said, "You owe it to the town to let us in on your master planning," she was told that consideration of the matter in closed session was allowed under the "sunshine" law since abolition of a post was under consideration.

However, Superintendent Paul Houston told the board and audience that he had discussed his proposal with school principals and administrators.

The abstaining board member was Rosalind Frisch. She fully supported the idea, she explained, but did not like the formal wording of the enabling resolution in which it was said that "initially," the new director would report to the Superintendent. As written, the paragraph also looked as though the director's duties would be assigned "initially."

An amendment omitting the word had been proposed but not passed (it was a tie vote). Dr. Houston said he felt "initially" gave himself and the board room to move around in, as time went by.

In other business, the board announced a 7:30 executive session on a personnel matter for next Tuesday, and teed up to discuss golf team funding at next month's public business meeting. The question is complicated by board policy that says the high school's student activities account may not be tapped for sports programs. There is presently $44,000 in the account, Dr. Houston reported.

The new director will report directly to Superintendent Houston and will, in Dr. Houston's words, "play a major role in the district's increased emphasis on improving the quality of staff supervision and curriculum development."

A nationwide search has begun with an advertisement in the Sunday New York Times, this issue of TOWN TOPICS (page 44) and other publications. The salary range is $29,000 to $31,000. Dr. Houston says he wants someone with "a strong, graduate-level background in curriculum development and supervision and demonstrated leadership skills in secondary school settings."

As word of the decision spreads around the community, the question is being asked—"Is this an end run around Princeton High Principal George Petrillo?" Mr. Petrillo has tenure in his job. A football fan himself, the Superintendent says "No." "A lot of people who make end runs, he says, get tackled out of bounds.

"The high school principal will still be in charge of the building and responsible for what happens there," Dr. Houston emphasized, "I consider the principal the educational leader of the building.

"My concern is for better coordination of Middle School and High School," he explained. "Both have been operating independently, and I think we can get more mileage out of both."

The new director will, among other duties, help Dr. Paul Jennings, the Assistant Superintendent, in coordinating programs at Middle and High School. One important task will be to make sure there is an orderly transition of subject matter from middle-to-high school.

This means the director will work closely with both Mr. Petrillo and with Middle School Principal William Johnson, doing long-range planning and helping the two principals set in motion whatever is planned.

At PHS the director will also be in frequent touch with department chairmen in the school.

"It's very difficult for someone running a school to step back and deal with long-range planning," the Superintendent observed. "Also, George can't meet several times a week with his department chairman—but this new person will have the time to do so.

"Then, there's the whole thrust of staff evaluation. In the Middle School, this is hard to do: the high school has department heads and assistant principals, but the Middle School has only its principal and one assistant—and of course, fewer teachers.

"The new director will help both principals, but both principals will retain their major responsibilities for planning and evaluation. The new person will be working beyond just one building—and reporting to me. If you report to both principals—well, just who are you really reporting to! And I want to be plugged in as much as possible."

The new post was not suggested in Dr. Houston's report on Princeton High School. But when the retirement of Frank Soda was announced, it seemed like an opportunity for change, Dr. Houston said.

"You don't replace Frank Soda with another Frank. He is a unique man," Dr. Houston observed. "So I looked at his retirement in terms of the needs of the district."

Temporarily, another assistant principalship will be vacant during Norman van Arsdalen's sabbatical next semester. Alfred Seitz is now working out of the office of Ronald Novak, business administrator. Florence Burke will therefore be the only assistant principal until Mr. van Arsdalen's return.

The new move will not stand in isolation, Dr. Houston said. Eventually, he revealed, he plans to cut back on the number of administrators.

"But you must deal with the long-range implications," he said, "you want a 'process,' so that as attrition occurs, you can adjust in terms of a sound education program.

"When I first came to Princeton, I learned that both board and town were concerned about coordination between Middle School and High School, and this move addresses that concern.

"It's a clear signal from the school board," the Superintendent said. "They could have just taken the money left from Frank Soda's retirement, but they wanted to show that program improvement, at the secondary-school level, is a clear priority."

Long-Controversial Club System at Princeton Would Die if New Dining Plan Becomes Reality

A presidentially-appointed Committee on Undergraduate Residential Life (CURL) at Princeton University has recommended sweeping changes in the structure of existing and social dining arrangements for undergraduates.

The proposed changes would eliminate the "bicker" system of selection to the eating clubs, a matter of historic controversy since the days of Woodrow Wilson. The plan is expected to cost the University $6-10 million in construction and renovation and an estimated $500,000 to $800,000 in additional operating costs.

In an interim report released this week to President Bowen, CURL recommended the creation of three new residential colleges which, with Princeton Inn College and Wilson College, would constitute a set of five colleges serving all freshmen and sophomores. All upperclassmen would be assigned, on a largely random basis, to Prospect Avenue eating clubs operating under contract with the University.

The report was based on a year's study by an 18-member panel composed of students, faculty and administration and chaired by J. Anderson Brown, Dean of Student Affairs. The plan requires substantial construction and the voluntary cooperation of the clubs and might take two years to implement, according to Provost Neil Rudenstine, a member of the committee.

New Construction Involved. Under the CURL plan, Commons would be renovated to provide social and dining facilities serving for two separate but adjacent colleges. Student members of these colleges would live in nearby dormitories. The social dining center of a fifth college would have to be built and would be located probably near the New New Quad.

The clubs would provide upperclassmen with essentially the same dining and social services they do now, but the University would offer subsidies of an undefined amount in order to ensure a common board rate and would undertake major structural repairs. The clubs would have to be "equally accessible to all Princeton juniors and seniors," the report states, but would "retain a considerable degree of autonomy in respect to governance and programs."

In its first report last June, the Committee noted that although a number of major facilities have been constructed since 1960, "many undergraduates continue to express a considerable degree of dissatisfaction with their residential experience." The number of options that exist has resulted in "a more fragmented student body," the committee found, and "much less interaction among students than is desirable."

The proposed five-college system for underclassmen is seen as offering opportunities in counseling, intramural athletics and cultural activities which freshmen and sophomores are more apt to need and have time for. The uniform dining plan for juniors and seniors would bring essentially all Princeton undergraduates together on Prospect Street during their last two years, and this, too, is seen as a significant "human and institutional gain."

In past years, the report notes, there have been wide fluctuations in the popularity of the eating clubs versus University dining options, with the result that both systems have suffered economically. The new plan reduces the number of options available in an attempt to create a "new and stable University-Club system."

Each club, the report suggests, would retain its graduate board and still be permitted to govern itself on most matters, such as food and staffing. The report also suggests using a "modified preference system" under which individual or small groups of students would list four clubs (but not rank them) and then be randomly assigned to one of the four. For the system to accommodate 1900 upperclassmen, some clubs would have to expand their membership to achieve an average of approximately 125 students.

Believing that "it is the current system itself that works against individual and group interaction," the committee also rejected the idea of a Student Center as a cure for Princeton's social and dining problems.

BOROUGH FOILED AGAIN

By Redoubtable Mr. Sheehan. Whether or not Borough officials ever come to wish they had never crossed swords with one Timothy J. Sheehan, it won't be for any lack of trying on Mr. Sheehan's part. Following up on his success two weeks ago, Mr. Sheehan again caught the Borough on a "sunshine" law violation.

When Council met Tuesday night to try and vote on final passage of the $45,000 bond ordinance to pay planners Venturi and Rauch, Mr. Sheehan asserted that a vote Tuesday would be in violation of the publications rules and challenged Mayor and Council to tell what date the ordinance had been published.

There was a long moment of embarrassed silence before Administrator Robert Mooney could mutter "December 6," one day short of the required seven days between date of publication and date of hearing. A new date has been established for December 27, which will be almost a month since the Borough first attempted final passage.

Two weeks ago, Mr. Sheehan discovered the same ordinance had not been posted in Borough Hall as required, and that hearing had to be rescheduled also.

Jerome Rose, Township representative on the Planning Board, charged this week that "serious legal and planning issues" are raised by the Borough's bond ordinance to pay the Venturi and Rauch planning firm, and says the issues should be explored before anybody authorizes spending the money.

Venturi and Rauch have already started work, on their own and with Borough officials, to figure out how best to handle a new parking garage, an expanded Palmer Square and library, and PCH's housing for the elderly.

The clear intent of the Municipal Land Use Law, declares Dr. Rose in a written memorandum, is to have the Planning Board the "EXCLUSIVE" (the emphasis is his) planning agency for the municipality.

The Borough's ordinance would allow "special and preferred treatment" to one particular area, Dr. Rose's memo continues, without regard to the way it might affect nearby areas. He points to the Planning Board's continuing work on housing and land-use parts of a new Master Plan, and says a detailed plan for downtown Princeton should await that new plan and be based on it, not the other way around.

"I understand his concern, but I don't think he's correct," said Borough attorney Gordon D. Griffin of Dr. Rose's memo. "A municipal governing body has the right, just as any private developer does, to prepare plans and go forward with projects, subject always to referring them to the Planning Board and getting Planning Board approval."

Mr. Griffin also pointed out that a governing body can over-ride Planning Board action, which the Borough has chosen not to do.

Happy Thought

The sun, so briefly
In the sky,
Will be here longer,
Bye and bye.

The days are still getting shorter, but the sun is already setting a bit later. It rises later, too accounting for less daylight until December 21, when that long, slow climb back to really longer days will begin again.

December's changeable weather pattern will continue for the rest of the week. Precipitation is possible late Wednesday, and again about Saturday, probably in the form of rain, but the Man hedges his bets at this time of year. Temperatures will continue to dip to 32 degrees or below at night, and will not move out of the 40s by day.

"The Planning Board isn't the agency that does nuts-and-bolts planning," Mr. Griffin continued. "If a private developer said, 'Tell me where to put office buildings or whatever, on my property,' the board would throw him out."

Mr. Griffin also commented that Princeton already has a Master Plan -- the board is now working on a new one -- it calls for a parking garage.

LET'S GET TOGETHER! On County Taxes. Even if you were elected on the Democratic ticket, when the Democratic County Board of Freeholders begins to warn of a $1.55 million shortfall in revenue and possibly higher taxes, you take action.

That's what Borough Council member Democrat Nelson van den Blink has done. She has proposed a conference with the other 12 municipalities in Mercer County. Subject: the county's budget.

"If we each review this budget and see whether we have areas of mutual concern," Mrs. van den Blink explains, "we could ask for a special meeting with County Executive Arthur Sypek and hope for a more substantive role in making up the budget."

"If it's true that county services may be cut and taxes go up, the people certainly should have a part in it all."

A Campaign Promise. In the recent election campaign, successful Republican candidate Charles Cornforth said that, if elected, he'd make it a point to attend Freeholder meetings and ask questions about the budget. Mrs. van den Blink suggested that Mr. Cornforth and successful Democratic candidate Richard Macgill would be key people in her plan to present a united front to the Freeholders.

She conceded that there isn't much time. The county's budget must be prepared by the end of the year.

Borough mayor Robert W. Cawley -- a Republican -- said he thought that Mercer's municipalities, if they did get together, could find major areas where the county might reduce its expenditures.

He added that specific suggestions would be required, and warned Mrs. van den Blink that the process would take more than one budget year.

Mr. Sypek pointed out last week that the county will lose the $650,000 in Federal anti-recession funds that it had this year and will not have the advantage of $900,000 used this year in a budget bookkeeping transfer involving revenue sharing.

Mercer County is selling its workhouse to the state for about $4 million; however, it's against the law to anticipate those funds and besides, Mr. Sypek said, he doesn't like mixing capital improvement funds with operating expenses.

In the Borough, local taxes account for only 16 cents of every tax dollar; county taxes amount to 37 cents and school taxes to 46 cents.

If There's Snow, Go—Or You'll Pay the Tow

If it snows hard this winter and you leave your car on a Borough street, the car will be towed away -- at your expense. The charge to you will be around $20 to $50, plus $3 to $7 a day storage.

Mayor Robert W. Cawley issued the warning this week as he announced results of a towing survey undertaken because car-owners complained last year that towing charges were too high.

"For the most part, these claims were unjustified," the mayor said.

In its survey, the Borough looked at potential costs incurred by the garages that do the towing and decided they were commensurate with the towing bills.

The Borough will tow cars away because Mayor Cawley and Council believe it's important to have streets accessible to emergency vehicles -- not possible if cars are snowbound at the curb. The mayor said he also wants to make sure that people can get to work and to stores.

"Mayor and Council are hoping," the municipal statement concludes, "that the Borough will not have any severe snow-storms this year."

contained. She had left it, she told them, on a night stand Thursday evening. In checking the rest of the house, police discovered some jewelry missing which the thief had sorted through, leaving costume jewelry behind.

Among the items taken were a $1600 white gold ring with four diamonds, a $400 white gold solitaire diamond ring, a pair of diamond earrings valued at $250, a $200 yellow gold wedding band and an amethyst pendant valued at $75. There was no sign of forced entry, police said.

Two other Township homes were entered but in each apparently nothing was taken.

A small window pane in a front door was knocked out to enter a Snowden lane home, which was searched. "Apparently the intruder was looking for cash," commented Chief Frederick Porter. A large "Z" had been scratched on a bureau and a desk, he said.

Sgt. David Potts investigated the entry which took place between 8 a.m. and 1:17 p.m. last Wednesday.

Between 5:15 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Friday, an intruder knocked out a pane of glass, reached in and unlocked the rear door of a FitzRandolph Road home. He rifled several bureaus and desks upstairs, dumping items on the floor but apparently taking nothing. A large suitcase was removed from the upstairs and left on a sunporch, police said.

Ptl. Renn Kaminski and William Duvall of Princeton University security investigated.

In another entry, a screen was knocked out to allow a thief to open an unlocked ground floor window of a student's room in 1922 Hall on the university campus. Items with a total value of $460 were taken.

Among them: a gold ring with diamond chips ($200), a Phi Beta Kappa gold key ($110), a turquoise and silver choker ($50), 12-15 pair of earrings ($50) and 2 bracelets ($50). Police report the room was entered between 5:30 and 9:15 p.m.

Christmas Fund Nears $1900; Your Check Will Be Welcome

From the 1978 TOWN TOPICS Christmas Appeal:

They are young, with an enchanting baby girl. But serious illness strikes even those who are young with a new life in their care, and their own lives stretching ahead. Because of Ron's severe illness, he has not been able to work for over a month. And because he hasn't been able to work, he's been fired.

Ron and Jackie have no money to pay the rent on their small apartment. Needless to say, other bills haven't been paid either.

Contributions to the TOWN TOPICS Christmas Fund now total $1,887. The money is made available to the Family Service Agency, which has certified the need of all those on whose behalf the appeal is made. Every cent contributed goes to them—all administrative expenses are met by TOWN TOPICS.

Checks should be made payable to the TOWN TOPICS Christmas Fund, mailed to P.O. Box 664, Princeton, or brought to 4 Mercer Street.

LADDER IS USED

To Enter Battle Road Home. A ladder was used to enter a second floor window of a Battle Road home early last week where the only thing taken was a mink cape.

Police report they have not yet received a value on the cape but their investigation is continuing. The house had been searched in an orderly fashion, they said.

A Riverside Drive home was reported entered Friday and ransacked. Taken were several diamond rings, ceramic plates and figurines and pewter. Police have not received any value yet for the missing items but report it could range from several hundred dollars to several thousand.

Entry was gained through an unlocked door. Det. Gerald Patterson is continuing the initial investigation by Ptl. Robert Mucciarelli.

Two parked cars were broken into in the Borough on Saturday.

From an unlocked car parked in the drive of its Charlton Street owner, a thief removed a tape unit valued at $130 and tapes valued at $8; $90 in cassette tapes, five quarts of oil and a first aid kit were stolen from a car parked in a drive on Murray Place. Police said a locked door had been unlocked to get inside.

In another entry on Murray Place, a door of a home was forced open between 10:30 a.m. and 9:30 p.m. Monday. The thief took a $20 AM-FM portable radio.

THREE ARE INJURED

..In Harrison Street Accident. A 17-year old driver, his 17-year old passenger and a second driver sustained minor injuries, following a collision Saturday afternoon on North Harrison Street at Valley Road.

Kevin R. Wyckoff of 32 Columbia Avenue, Hopewell, was ticketed for failing to yield the right of way at an intersection when he turned left onto Valley in front of a car operated by Janet A. Downs, 25, of Somerset. Mr. Wyckoff complained of chest pains, his passenger, Richard Pedestrian Struck. Helen Hersey, 40, 205 Witherspoon Street, was knocked to the roadway shortly after noon Friday, moments after she had parked her car and had attempoted to cross Nassau Street near Moore.

The driver, John A. Archer, 72, of Green Valley, Arizona, told police he was in a line of slow-moving, bumper-to-bumper traffic when the victim suddently walked in front of his car. He braked but his car skidded on the wet roadway and knocked Mrs. Hersey to the pavement.

She was treated at the Medical Center for a bruised hip. There were no charges.

BOSTON HARBOUR TEA

On December 16, 1773 a group of American patriots boarded three English ships in Boston Harbour and threw the tea aboard into the water, in protest against the duty imposed on tea by the Government of King George III. Three months later, on March 7, 1774, at a second Boston Tea Party, 16 chests of tea from Davison Newman & Co. were also dumped in the Harbour. This was the prelude to the American War of Independence. No duty is payable now.

one on Leabrook Lane were damaged by vandals between midnight Saturday and Sunday morning. All were parked in the driveway of the owner.

Both front and rear doors of the car parked on Leabrook were forced back so they would not close properly, police said. In addition both wipers, radio antenna and exterior mirror were broken off, as were radio control and gear shift knobs inside the car. Both sun visors were also bent and the headlights left on.

On Linwood, the treatment was the same: wiper blades, turn signal handle, sun visors, antenna, rear view mirror -- all broken or torn off. In addition, the vandals at one location bent an outdoor light post at the end of the drive.

WOMAN CHARGED

With Shoplifting. Twenty-year old Denise Ford of Trenton has been charged by Borough police with shoplifting women's clothing valued at $264 last week from a women's apparel shop on Nassau Street.

Police said she had the clothing in her possession when arrested by Sgt. Robert Anderson inside the store. She is scheduled to appear in court here February 7.

A man identified by Borough police as Stanley Clark of Hightstown has been charged with possesion of stolen property. He was arrested by Montgomery Township police after he allegedly shoplifted a $31.27 filet mignon Friday from Davidson's Market on Nassau Street.

Jason Weiniger, 32, no known address, was arrested by police Thursday and charge with trespassing, after the owner of an apartment house at 184 Witherspoon Street called to report that Weiniger had forced his way into the building and had taken up residency there.

Juveniles Arrested. Two juveniles, 14 and 15, identified by police as students at a Princeton boarding school, were arrested Saturday night.

Ptl. Glenn Stanton and Ptl. Randy Sutton responded to a 10 p.m. call that two youths were breaking into a van parked in the parking lot behind the former South's garage at 2-4 Nassau Street. Police found one of the youths inside the van, the other inside the garage.

They were also found to be in possession of marijuana and a pint of whiskey, police

OFFICE TO OPEN

For New Health Association. The newly-formed Holistic Health Association of the Princeton Area will open an office and lending library on Friday at 360 Nassau Street, Harriet Bogdonoff, president-designate of the group, has announced.

It will be located in the same building as the Whole Earth Center and the Sierra Club. Volunteers will staff the office at the outset.

The Holistic Health Association is dedicated to the maintenance of maximum health by considering the whole person, emotionally, mentally, spiritually, as well as physically. Plans are to provide opportunities for lay people and doctors and other health professionals to become acquainted with the principles of holistic health by providing speakers, services, seminars and workshops.

The office will house a library of holistic books and magazines and a bulletin board where announcements of news and events relating to holistic health will be listed. Eventually the office will be a resource center for information about health services available in this area, as well as a place to meet, and to share ideas and activities.

For information about membership, or for a complimentary copy of the HHAPA newsletter, visit the office or call 924-7216, 924-7707 or 924-8580.

IF YOU LIVE outside of Princeton and are regularly buying TOWN TOPICS at a newsstand, a mail subscription can save you time and money. Call 924-2200 today.

APPOINTMENT MADE

Moran's Successor Named. Eugene J. McPartland, 24 Turner Court, general manager of plant at Princeton University since 1976, will assume the position of general manager of planning, plant and properties on January 1. His new post encompasses many of the responsibilities currently held by Vice-President for Facilities John P. Moran, who has announced his resignation, effective at the end of the year. The vice-presidential position will not be filled.

Mr. McPartland, 44, will have administrative oversight, under Provost Neil L. Rudenstine, of the departments of engineering and construction, maintenance, planning, real estate and services. In addition, he will be secretary to the Trustee Committee on Grounds and Buildings and will have primary responsibility for representing the university's real estate interests before governmental bodies.

In the realignment of Mr. Moran's duties, direct responsibility for the university's investment real estate, including Forrestal Center and Palmer Square, will shift to Financial Vice-President and Treasurer Carl W. Schafer.

Eugene J. McPartland

Mr. McPartland joined Princeton's administrative staff in his current position in September 1976, after completing service in the Civil Engineer Corps of the Navy. He is married to the former Elaine McCoy. They have a daughter, Lynn, a junior at Villanova.

APPLICANTS SOUGHT

For Pennington Boards. Mayor Edwin W. Tucker of Pennington Borough has announced that he is seeking applications from Borough residents to serve on a number of seats that may be open on January 1.

Mayor Tucker said that he is attempting to find "the most experienced and best qualified persons to serve on these boards." He is asking that all persons who may be interested in serving contact him as soon as possible.

Pennington will have openings on the Zoning Board, the Board of Health, the Park and Shade Tree Commission, the Local Assistance Board, the Planning Board and the Recreation Commission.

Old-Fashioned Tree

A Christmas tree right out of the Princeton of 100 years ago will be in the General Store of the Children's Museum, Bainbridge House (158 Nassau) at the "Christmas Open House" Sunday from 2-4.

Everyone is invited, and the party is free. So is the cup of cider, and the "makings" for your own antique Christmas ornament: a pomander ball.

Sleigh bells will be there to ring, and the Museum promises every single verse of "Jingle Bells" if you want to sing them all.

At this time of year, our thoughts turn to candlelight processions ..to red and white robes...to familiar carols...and perhaps, if you live in this area, to The Columbus Boychoir.

But Did You Know...

That education goes on year round at the Boychoir School?

That "average" boys as well as gifted ones can benefit from the Boychoir School's program?

That graduates of this little school go on to a wide variety of fine secondary schools?

And Did You Know...

That the school now takes Day Students? That there are openings in January as well as September?

AUDITIONS
Are Scheduled January 3, 1979

Further information about this unusual and broadening experience is available by calling Mrs. McCamley, Admissions Director, or two of our local parents: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hankinson (609) 921-8733 or Professor and Mrs. Gerald Gervey (609) 924-1556.

Seven Cameras Head Theft List, Which Includes Hubcaps, Tire, Check Books, Cash and a Toolbox

"This was a week for cameras" reported Chief Michael Carnevale this week. It was, as an even seven were taken in separate thefts.

A camera and 135 telephoto lens with a combined value of $400 were stolen Saturday from a room in Lockhart Hall on the university campus, where there was no forced entry. A home on Chestnut Street was entered between 6 and 8 p.m. last week through an unlocked door and a camera valued at $300 was taken; in a second theft on Chestnut Street a day earlier, a camera was removed from a bookshelf. There was no forced entry.

Two cameras were taken from a home on Ewing Street. One was valued at $268; a second, taken from another person in the same home, at $400. Again, no signs of forced entry.

A Princeton High School student reported his $260 camera was stolen last week from the school's dark room, and a Henry Hall resident on the university campus told police a 35mm camera valued at $300 and a $110 lens were taken from his room. No forced entry, police said. A 135 telephoto lens valued at $85 was stolen from an unlocked room in Holder Hall.

In two other campus thefts, a 35mm slide projector valued at $247 was stolen from the School of Architecture building, and another slide projector and tape recorder were taken from Wilcox Hall while they were in the process of being moved from one area to another.

From a dresser drawer in Lockhart Hall, a thief made off with $125 in cash -- no forced entry --while a Trenton resident told police that four spoke wheel hubcaps valued at $140 were removed from his car last week while it was parked on Clay Street.

An out-of-town resident visiting Princeton High School had her purse taken from her unlocked car while it was parked from 8:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. in a lot at the high school. Inside was a wallet containing $160.

Township police reported three larcenies. A Mulberry Row resident listed the theft of a toolbox valued at $150 from his unlocked car parked in front of his home, and a Randall Road resident told police a spare tire valued at $85 had been taken from his car Saturday morning while it had been parked in the Baker Rink lot on campus.

He reported he had been attending a Pee Wee hockey program at the rink and discovered the theft when he returned to his car at 7:45 in the morning. A lock on the driver's side door had been jimmied, police said.

An employee at the John Witherspoon School lost $20, a check book, credit cards and a wallet containing $10 when her clutch bag was stolen from a classroom between noon and 3:30.

Purse Stolen. A Jefferson Road woman lost $15 when her purse was taken from a kitchen table between 6 and 7 p.m. by a sneakthief who entered an unlocked rear door. Her wallet was later recovered on Bayard Lane, minus the money.

A 10-speed boy's bicycle, valued at $150, was stolen last week from Princeton High School. Police said it was unlocked.

The car of a Red Bank resident was broken into Monday while it was parked in a university lot off Prospect Avenue. The thief broke a front window to steal a portable radio valued at $168 and 24 8-track tapes.

In one of two thefts at the Coin Wash, 259 Nassau, a Princeton resident left her purse on a table while she was doing her wash at 12:01 Tuesday morning. She said she saw a teenager enter, take her purse and run out. She lost $55 and credit cards.

On Sunday, a South Brunswick resident had parked her car by the Wash-O-Mat and left it unlocked. Her shoulder bag containing two check books, $24 worth of bus tickets to New York City, credit cards, but no cash, was taken.

FUR COAT STOLEN
Bristol Man Charged.

Andre L. Burk, 19, of Bristol, Pa. has been charged by Borough police with the theft of a $1,000 fox fur coat, which was reported stolen Monday afternoon from an office at 32 Nassau Street. He was later released on $50 bail, pending his appearance in court next Wednesday.

Ptl. Glenn Stanton was told that someone had taken the coat between 2:40 and 2:50 in the afternoon. A description of the suspect and the coat was radioed to police patrol cars, and at 3:15, Ptl. Stanton, Ptl. Randy Sutton and Ptl. Robert Mucciarelli arrested Burk at a bus stop on Nassau and Mercer streets. Police said he was in possession of the coat at the time of his arrest.

Borough police have also recovered a black Persian fur coat with a mink collar valued at $900 owned by a New York City resident. It had been reported stolen early Sunday evening from a restaurant here.

Ptl. Sutton and Ptl. Stanton received information about a possible suspect, Chief Michael Carnevale said. He declined to say how the coat was recovered or whether any arrests are imminent. "Our investigation is continuing," he said.

Check Those Checks

Approximately 100 blank checks drawn on the First National Bank of Princeton were stolen between November 28 and December 5 from a table in a meeting room of the Stoney Brook Regional Sewage Authority on River Road.

Since then, Chief Frederick Porter announced that the First National Bank has received seven of the checks which have been cashed for an approximate $800. All the banks in the area have been alerted but Chief Porter urges everyone to double check before cashing any checks.

DOLL HOUSE ON VIEW

At MCCC. A hand-constructed Tudor dollhouse will be exhibited in the Triangle Gallery on the West Windsor campus of Mercer County Community College daily through December 22.

The eight-room timbered dollhouse with 18 windows and three stories of nooks and crannies was begun in the fall of 1975 by Frank Rivera, chairman of the MCCC Visual Arts Department, for his seven year old daughter, Clea.

The evolution of the three-year project is described by the accompanying photo documentation of Claudia Tedeschi, senior technical assistant in photography at the college.

Mr. Rivera became interested in the Tudor style while visiting the Normandy area of France, and in the art of the miniaturist while visiting the Museum of the City of Paris. The house was built from scratch with the staircases, paneling, cornices, closets, fireplaces all painstakingly constructed, glued, painted and fitted into place. The roof contains hundreds of individually fired ceramic tiles.

The exhibit is free and open to the public.

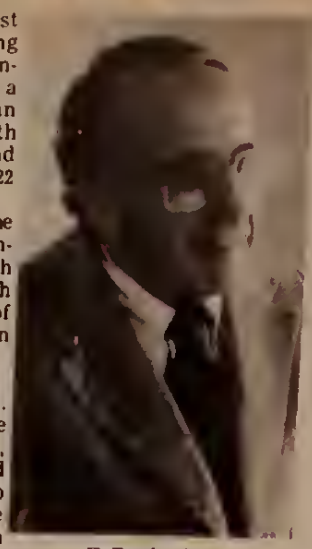
Trinity Counseling Service Marks Decade of Steady Growth

In the course of the past year, Trinity Counseling Service has become incorporated and received a sizeable grant from an anonymous foundation with which to renovate and refurbish its home at 22 Stockton Street.

The incorporation and the face lifting mark the beginning of a new relationship with Trinity Church, which sponsored the founding of Trinity Counseling Service ten years ago.



E. Rugby Auer

According to the Rev. E. Rugby Auer, executive director and founding father, the incorporation has enabled the Counseling Service, "to get out of the dependency role and become our own organization." At the same time, the renegotiations leading to a carefully thought out 25-year lease for the building which Trinity Church owns here resulted in a closer relationship between the two institutions. As the Rev. John Crocker Jr., rector, puts it, "Both parties have the maximum benefit of a structural closeness and structural distinction."

Meanwhile the badly-needed fresh paint, modern lighting, new carpets, safer stairs and fire escape made possible by the grant are a way in which "we are able to give something back to Trinity Church," says Father Auer. "We are fixing up the building for our present and their future." The three-story building will have a total of 12 therapy rooms, several of which are equipped with one way mirrors for use in the training programs, as well as office and storage space.

For Those Who Are Hurting. Father Auer founded Trinity Counseling Service 10 years ago when he was vicar of Trinity Church and the Rev. James Whittemore was rector. As more and more individuals and families came to him with problems, Father Auer saw the need for a low cost professional counseling service. With Frank Haronian, a psychologist, he gathered a group of professional people who work to relieve adults and young people "who are hurting," Father Auer's own apt description of the clientele.

Today Trinity Counseling Service is staffed by 17 professional people who operate in a pastoral tradition of caring that is rooted in Judeo-Christian values. What makes the service unusual is the mix of professionals represented on the staff, an interdisciplinary team of clinical psychologists, social workers, psychiatrists and clergy. They represent many different denominations as well.

In all they give some 700-800 hours of therapeutic counseling a month. Father Auer's particular responsibilities lie in the taking of case histories and assigning individuals to the therapist best suited to the problem, in raising nearly half of the budget and in allocating the other half in terms of client fees.

Working with him as pastoral clinical director is the Rev. A. J. van den Blink who also oversees the educational programs. These include a two-year training program in family therapy for practicing professionals such as social workers, psychologists and pastoral counselors; a post-graduate program for professionals just starting a practice; and coming this fall, a joint program in pastoral studies with New York Theological Seminary leading to a master of sacred theology (STM) in pastoral care and counseling.

Program for Clergy. Father Auer received his own training in counseling through this program at New York Seminary, and he is pleased to be bringing it to the field, so to speak, for busy clergy and other religious professionals. "We will not be training clergy to be counselors," Father Auer says, "but to be better counselors as clergymen."

This past Sunday Trinity Church held its annual service of recognition for Trinity Counseling Service. All 17 members of the staff wore full academic regalia, and G. Reginald Bishop Jr., former chairman of the board of directors, gave the sermon.

Another invitation will be extended to the other counseling agencies in town in January, Father Auer says. In all, it has been a busy year and one in which he can take pride.

It pays to be an idealist when you buy a diamond.

A diamond is not a casual purchase. You want it to be worn and enjoyed throughout a lifetime.

That's why you should never compromise on the beauty and value of the diamond you buy, regardless of its size. You should look for a diamond that's been painstakingly cut and polished to bring out all of its natural brilliance and beauty, one that meets the exacting standards that have been established as ideal. These are called ideal cut diamonds.

Why is cut so important? Because with diamonds, unlike colored gems, beauty depends on light reflection.

When a diamond is ideally cut, its 58 facets are placed in precise symmetrical relation to others. They act as a series of tiny mirrors, constantly capturing and reflecting light and bouncing it back through the top of the stone in a brilliant blaze.

Whichever diamond shape you prefer—round, oval, marquise, emerald- cut, pear or heart-shaped—and whatever size you choose,

LaVake Ideal Cut Diamonds ensure you of getting the most beauty and value for your investment.

MERWICK CITED

For Service to Handicapped. The Merwick Unit of The Medical Center has received the results of a survey by the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities. The report of the survey, conducted in October, cited the Merwick Unit on Bayard Lane for "dedication and commitment in improving the quality of the lives of the handicapped and disabled individuals residing in The Medical Center service area.

In his report to the Medical Center, Alan H. Toppel, Executive Director of the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities, stated that the Merwick Unit "has successfully met high standards of performance and has been accredited for its programs of Physical Restoration for a period of three years." This is the maximum level of achievement that any health care institution can receive.

The Commission, a national non-profit organization, is comprised of representatives from the American Hospital Association, Association of Rehabilitation Facilities, Goodwill Industries of America and four other National Rehabilitative Associations.

Commenting on the Commission's report, Benjamin Accardi, assistant vice-president in charge of Merwick, said, "We are very proud of this accomplishment because the report reinforces the fact that we are producing and continue to provide the wide range of high quality rehabilitative services required by the people within the Medical Center's service area.

ART
In Princeton

AMUSING, INCISIVE

Cartoons from the New Yorker. The art of the cartoon has a distinguished history. In the 18th and 19th centuries, such noteworthy artists as Hogarth, Cruikshank and Daumier satirically portrayed social and political life in Paris and London. Popular journals and penny giveaways were filled with visual commentary on marriage, government, the problems of daily living and a documentation of social foibles.

With the advent of improved printing processes, an expanded outlet for the cartoon generated a proliferation of style and an ever-widening target for the cartoonist's pen. Many of the journals of the past century have been considered significant, as much for the quality and content of their cartoons as for their texts.

The New Yorker must be considered without equal among the publications that have been judged outstanding because of their cartoons. Since publication of the first issue, it has consistently provided graphic humor that has always entertained and frequently mirrored the more vulnerable aspects of its readers and their surroundings. No aspect of our society has been sheltered from the witty barbs cast by talented artists offering an entertaining, incisive mirror to the way we live.

An exhibition of original New Yorker cartoons from the collection of David E. Lillienthal is currently on display at the Graphic Arts Collection at Firestone Library. Mr. Lillienthal supplements his extensive collection with early, distinguished cartoons that might be considered ancestors of the more recent statements. Eighteenth century satirical works of Hogarth and Rowlandson and works by 19th century artists such as Daumier, Dore and Cruikshank offer a stylistic point of departure for considering the entertaining comments about life in this country in the middle of the 20th century.

Over Three Decades. The 32 New Yorker cartoons that are included span 30 years and include work by many of the most distinguished cartoonists in the magazines repertory including Barney Tobey, Charles Addams, Henry Martin, Lee Lorenz and Chon Day, among others. The study of the original cartoons, which are considerably larger than their published reproductions, allows the viewer an opportunity to enjoy the technical virtuosity to be found in these drawings while being entertained by the content. The structural intricacy of many of the cartoons and the exaggerated fidelity to subject are as noteworthy as is the expressiveness of the many amusing faces that are presented. Preliminary sketches and artists notes offer additional perspective for enjoying the displayed works.

A more personal touch is added by the inclusion of several political cartoons that deal with Mr. Lillienthal's distinguished career as a public servant. As director of the Tennessee Valley Authority and head of the Atomic Energy Commission, he also served as the inspiration for many different political cartoons, of which several can be seen in the present collection.

At the University Art Museum. Albrecht Durer changed the nature of the print. elegant line. Elaborate figurative works always include equally elaborate background landscape and subtly rendered nature forms.

The interplay of the many different graphic expressions of Durer provide a richness of subject and form enabling the viewer to enjoy the range of technical virtuosity and the differences and similarities to be found in the different print media.

At the Gallery of Fine Art. The December collection offers a range of major painters and printmakers spanning several centuries. The graphics gallery includes several Kollwitz lithographs, works by Ensor, Daumier and other significant graphic artists together with a collection of Indian miniatures.

Paintings include an extensive range of 20th century styles, from traditional realism to the enlarged half tone dots of Roy Lichtenstein. Several prints and a painting by Jack Levine, works by Miro, Grosz and Picasso are among those included.

At the Eye for Art. A portfolio of copperplate engravings from "The Academy of Architecture Sculpture and Painting" by Joachim De Sandrart, Nuremberg 1683, offers portraits of famous scholars, artists and other notables. Pythagoras, Theocritus, Leonardo da Vinci and others of equally distinguished rank are portrayed with a fine engraver's line, often set among classical embellishments, garlands and other formal settings appropriate to the period.

FUTURE SHOCK!!!

Who would have thought that we'd ever look forward to an annual inflation rate of 6% with an emotion close to ecstacy? Yet, today that's what we're doing. The reason, of course, is that after three successive yearly hikes averaging better than 9%, last year's 6% increase looks pretty good. Don't be fooled—6% inflation is high. At that rate prices double in 12 years.

What would happen to housing prices with a 6% yearly cost-of-living increase? A home that cost $60,000 now would increase to $120,732 in 12 years. In 20 years it would cost $192,428. In 30 years it would sell for $344,609.

What does all this mean? Whatever your age, you must find a way to create an income in addition to your pay check. Although there is no such thing as the perfect investment, real estate may be the nearest thing to it. It can be an income producer, a shelter from high taxes, and an ideal protection from the ravages of inflation. Real estate values historically increase faster than general inflation prices and maintain a higher value than most assets in depression. The ideal hedge.

They Know What's Up.

To the Editor:

I have worked in a drug clinic for a year on a hot-line telephone. These "kids" (TOWN TOPICS, December 6) are old enough to vote, to drive cars and to drink. They must be aware that they are dealing in and pushing hell and death. I've seen it in action.

Patience Requested.

To the Editor of Town Topics.

We appreciate the sympathetic understanding with which New Jersey Symphony subscribers received the disappointing news of Wednesday evening's performance cancellation at McCarter. (See News of the Theatres, Page 2B).

Because the strike is not yet settled, ticket - holders are requested to 'sit tight' until the course of action is known. Please be assured that you will be informed as soon as possible and treated with extreme fairness.

Meanwhile, we are setting plans for the January 10 concert at McCarter, and the January 8 noontime pre-concert lecture given by John Ellis at "Drumthwacket." Everyone is cordially invited.

Park's Preservation Asked.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The petition to keep the Guyot pathway in its present natural state from Jefferson to Carnahan will come before the Township Committee for discussion Wednesday, December 13, at 8 in Township Hall.

Over 100 homeowners in the immediate neighborhood sponsor the request to have that 2-block section of "proposed Guyot Avenue" reclassified as a park, to keep Guyot from becoming a through street for cars and to maintain the brook valley as a safe, pleasant and popular East-West pedestrian way. It is well used by people walking or bicycling to Community Park or the High School, especially.

The way to retire in comfort...

a Princeton Savings' IRA Account

If you're not in a retirement plan where you work, you can set up your own Individual Retirement Account at Princeton Savings by putting away up to 15% of your annual income (to a $1,500 maximum). That can not only mean the good things in life when you retire, but will also act as a tax shelter right now. Because while you're earning a big 7¾% (3 years • minimum $100) a year in your account, both the money you save and the interest it earns are tax deductible until you begin to withdraw at retirement; by then, you'll probably be in a lower tax bracket.

SPOUSE'S IRA ACCOUNT
You can also get an additional $250 deduction if your spouse takes care of the house, but holds no outside job. You can then deposit up to 15% of your annual income (to a $1,750 maximum) and defer taxes until you or your spouse retires.

ROLLOVER IRA ACCOUNT
If you received a lump-sum from another retirement plan, you can redeposit it within 60 days in a Rollover IRA Account and save tax dollars. The initial amount you can deposit is limited only by the size of your lump-sum distribution.

Stop in at any office of Princeton Savings for detailed information on our IRA plans. When your future is concerned, you'll find it really pays to save . . . where people make the difference!

Retirement distribution may start as early as 59½ or as late as 70½. Federal regulations require substantial penalty for early withdrawal.

TIGERS UPSET VILLANOVA

Win at Palestra, 65-59. Shooting a fine 62% from the floor and an equally impressive 83% at the line, Princeton's basketball team upset Villanova Tuesday night at the Palestra, 65 to 59. The Wildcats had gone into the game with a 5-1 mark and a triumph three days earlier over nationally-ranked Rutgers by 19 points.

Bob Roma's 22 points and 18 rebounds were the major factors in the Tigers' wholly unexpected victory. Ahead by 59-57 with just over a minute to go, Princeton nailed down the decision when Tim Olah, Dave Blatt and Roma all sank a pair of free throws.

Throughout the evening, the victors' defense against the high-scoring Villanova quintet was particularly impressive. The outcome raised Princeton's record to 4-2 and boosted its stock immediately in the forthcoming Ivy league race.

DRY SPELL HURTS

As PHS Bows to Ewing, 72-54. Thirteen unanswered points by visiting Ewing here Tuesday turned a close game around as the Blue Devils (2-0) went on to defeat Princeton High in basketball, 72-54.

After PHS trailed Ewing by two, 14-12, at the end of the first period and by six at the half, the same Ewing team that had shocked Neptune, picked by many to be the next Group 4 state champion, 76-74 in its opener, the Little Tigers could not find the hoop in the third period. Only 3:15 was left before Shaun Tobin's basket ended the drought. By then, Ewing owned a 47-30 lead.

"Instead of being down by six or eight, we were down by 18. By the time the team regained its composure we were still down by 18," moaned PHS coach Marv Trotman. Mistakes and a lack of patience contributed to many PHS turnovers.

"Going to Come." "We're going to come, though," Trotman predicted. "We're going to be all right after Christmas when we play schools on our own experience level. I haven't given up hope; we fought 'em to a standstill in the first half."

Six points each by Tobin and Peter Sharpless, both sophomores, led PHS in scoring in the first half. In the final period, three jumpers in a row by David Johnson enabled him to finish with 11 points. Tobin was high for the Little Tigers, now 0-2, with 12, while Sharpless ended with 10.

PERSONNEL NOTES

Two area residents presented technical papers at the 71st annual meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineering.

A paper by Norman H. Sweed of Oxirane International, a resident of 17 Hathaway Drive, Princeton Junction, covered recent developments in the theory and practice of absorption and ion exchange separations. How these processes can be used in both research and industry was also covered.

Weldon K. Bell, senior research engineer for Mobil Research and Development Corp, led a free forum discussion for the presentation and discussion of new ideas, developments or results in chemical engineering. He lives at 428 Burd Street, Pennington.

Robert Sussna, an architect with offices at 234 Nassau Street, has written an article in the November issue of the Bar Journal of the New Jersey Bar Association. Under the heading, "Your Law Office Design: An Eloquent Spokesman," Mr. Sussna says that law office design should be "appealing but not flamboyant if you wish to inspire confidence in your client. Traditional values can be conveyed in a contemporary manner," he believes.

MITE INJURY PLUS DROUGHT CAUSING HEAVY DROP OF EVERGREEN NEEDLES

with Sam deTuro

A combination of drought and mite injury is causing excessive dropping of needles on many evergreens this Fall. It is particularly noticeable on Spruce, Hemlock, Arborvitae and White Pine, and alarming to tree owners.

It is normal for evergreens to cast their three-year-old needles. But this year, one and two-year-old needles are falling as well. Many an evergreen has a "plucked chicken" look.

In every severe case investigated, an infestation of mites—tiny eight-legged pests that are not true insects, but belong to the spider family—has been found. Some are so small that they are barely perceptible to the naked eye. They feed on needles, causing injury by sucking plant juices. Sometimes, they transmit diseases.

This feeding results in off-color, often yellow, foliage, and soon dries out the needles. This dehydration, plus the drought which denied needed moisture supply to the root, results in needles dropping.

The best way to restore lost vigor of sad-looking evergreens is to see that they go into Winter with an ample supply of moisture around the roots. Water them thoroughly, feed them, then apply a mulch and be sure to spray next Spring.

TWO PROGRAMS PLANNED

By Christian Center. The Nassau Christian Center at the corner of Chambers and Nassau Streets has planned two musical programs for this weekend.

Lilly Green, a singer and guitarist who performs contemporary Christian music, will be at the Jacobs Well coffee house for teenagers and adults at 9 Chambers Street Friday at 8. Ms. Green is a native Canadian who began the guitar at age 15 and soon developed a full time committment to Christian music. She has written over 200 songs and has appeared before numerous radio and television audiences.

Tony Valenti will perform a Christmas concert at the Nassau Christian Center Saturday at 7. Mr. Valenti has appeared on the Merv Griffin show and at many nightclubs. "Since his New Birth in Christ he has been singing for the Lord," a church spokesman says.

The public is invited.

BULLETIN NOTES

The Lutheran Church of the Messiah, 407 Nassau Street, will conduct a single worship service Sunday at 10, with a congregational meeting to follow at 11. One of the items to be discussed at the meeting will be the possible purchase of the New Lutheran Book of Worship -- a new worship resource that has been put out by the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, the American Lutheran Church, and the Lutheran Church in America.

Sunday School will be at 9.

Interim pastor is the Rev. Curtis A. Larson. All are welcome.

"Anxiety and Grace," an account of one Unitarian-Universalist's sojourn among orthodox Christians, will be the sermon topic presented by the Rev. Deborah Pope-Lance on Sunday at the Unitarian Church of Greater Trenton located on Washington Crossing-Pennington Road in Hopewell Township.

The United Methodist Church, Nassau and Vandeventer Streets, will hold the church school Christmas program Sunday beginning at 4:30. The church school classes will present a play and pageant with carols after dinner, and every child has an important part.

Rebecca Wolfson of Trenton; a son, Jonathan Wolfson of Lawrenceville, and a cousin, Mrs. Kenneth Carroll of Springfield, Ill.

The service was held at the Kimble Funeral Home, Rabbi Melvin J. Glatt of the Princeton Jewish Center officiating. Burial was in Roosevelt Memorial Park in Philadelphia. Memorial contributions may be made to the Lawrence Township First Aid and Rescue Squad.

Walter E. Short, a resident of the Nassau Club since 1970, died December 7 in the Merwick Unit of the Princeton Medical Center after a brief illness. He was 97 years old.

Mr. Short was the exceptionally capable head of the health and physical education department of the Trenton Public School system from 1921 to 1947. He also was responsible for the creation of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association in 1919 and for its development into a viable organization of the state's schools to run comprehensive athletic programs.

Born in Georgetown, Del., he received his secondary school education at Fayetteville, N.C., Military Academy where he developed his enthusiasm for sports. Mr. Short was short in stature as well as name, but his size was never a liability.

After graduating from Western Maryland in 1908, he taught at private and public high schools in Pennsylvania, in Rahway and in Elizabeth. He was director of athletics for the Newark public school system for three years before accepting the post as director of health and physical education for the Trenton schools.

As one of the founders of the NJSIAA he served as its secretary from its inception, and when retirement from the Trenton Board of Education became mandatory in 1947, he promptly accepted a full-time position with the association. He retired in 1958 and lived for a time in Winter Park, Fla. After the death of his wife, Mary Hasley Short, he came to the Nassau Club.

Surviving are two sons, Winthrop A. Short of Cohasset, Mass., and William H. Short of Princeton; four grandsons and two great-granddaughters.

A memorial service was held in the First Presbyterian Church of Trenton, Dr. Andrew Sebbin officiating. Contributions in his memory may be made to the Mary Hasley Short Book Fund at Firestone Library.

Miss Florence C. Haleski, 63, of 73 Washington Street, Rocky Hill, died December 10 in Lawrenceville.

Born in Philadelphia, Miss Haleski had lived in Rocky Hill for 23 years. During that time she was administrator of medical records at Princeton Medical Center, having previously served as director of medical records at Temple University.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Agnes H. Miller of Philadelphia and Mrs. Rose Cook of Lawrenceville, and a brother, Joseph Haleski of Oaklyn.

A memorial service will be held at a later date. Burial was in Whitemarsh Memorial Park, Philadelphia. Contributions may be made to Princeton Medical Center or to the American Cancer Society.

CHRISTMAS IN HARBOURTON

GREENWOOD

A stunning fieldstone colonial with slate roof, a one-half mile wooded lane, 85 rolling acres, absolute privacy. Dating from 1710 with additions in the 1800's and 1900's--all fieldstone. Completely renovated in 1951 by skilled artisans, each of the eleven rooms features raised panelled deep set windows and wainscoting of select hardwoods. The formal living room and study are finished in random width cherry and pine; each has a stone fireplace, the study a wet bar, and delicately burnished woodwork and mantles of a day gone by. The spacious dining room has two corner cupboards and deep set windows overlooking a meadow. The country kitchen is warm and inviting with its own brick fireplace, beamed ceiling, and has every conceivable modern convenience--a gourmet's delight--a family's haven. The master bedroom and three additional bedrooms, a sitting room with stone fireplace and three baths complete the second floor. Each entryway is connected by flagstone walkways to four flagstone patios constructed of hand hewn stone. The acreage is divided into lawns with boxwood plantings for future generations to enjoy, pastures already fenced, and fertile farmland. The original springhouse stands near the house providing water for ponds, horses, and the home itself. If you need a peaceful, special place, journey down this lane; you are sure to stay. Subject to subdivision. Please call us for your personal appointment. $555,000

Superman's Powers Include Ability to Change Various Aspects of His Mother's Way of Life

"There is the distinct possibility I could be dancing with Marlon Brando," said Barbara Johnson rather shakily last Friday morning. "But I'm not a dancer -- I'm a bird-watcher!"

What she is watching most closely these days, with a big, gulping mixture of pride, joyous tears, apprehension and love is not a bird, not a plane, but -- Superman.

And Barbara Johnson is his mother. Christopher Reeve, 26 years and three months old, is the gorgeous new star of "Superman," who has been on the cover of "Us" and "People" and "Newsweek" and Warners promotion only knows how many more to come.

CLARK KENT? YES, WE'RE RELATED. Barbara Johnson, shown here at her desk at TOWN TOPICS, is the mother of Chris Reeve, "Superman" who conceals his true nature under the guise of a timid newspaper reporter. The same high-cheek-boned, planed handsomeness characterizes both mother and son: you could identify her anywhere.

"Superman" had its world premiere Sunday at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. It was a benefit for the Special Olympics sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation for Retarded and Handicapped Children. The film opens in 700 movie houses around the country this week and is scheduled for the Prince Theatre on Route One this Friday.

Chris Reeve's mother and his step-father, Tristam B. Johnson, were invited to Wahington for three days of premiere festivities that began Friday evening. She bought a new dress -- "I feel like Cinderella going to the ball!" -- took along an old one and discovered in Washington that she had to stretch the two party dresses over a third, unexpected invitation. Mr. Johnson, normally a tweedy man, had to wear black tie and took along two dress shirts.

Dinner at the Shrivers. Marlon Brando comes into the picture -- although actually he didn't -- because he is the Big Name in "Superman" and was supposed to be at the Friday night dinner-dance for 350 given by the Sergeant Shrivers. Mrs. Shriver is Eunice Kennedy.

However, Brando decided to attend the Los Angeles opening instead, and so missed the chance to dance with a Princeton bird-watcher.

Reporters are always asking questions like "How does it feel to be the mother of a famous movie-star?"

Barbara is herself a reporter and has been on the TOWN TOPICS staff for three and one-half years. She writes features, church news, and is responsible for organizational news, "People," weddings and engagements, obituaries.

In the Spotlight. Although she comes from an affluent background -- a girlhood in New Canaan, Conn., followed by Vassar -- it was the kind of affluence in which time and money are devoted to bird-watching and conservation, the presidency of The Chapin School parents association and writing the Princeton Day School newsletter, not to disco dancing at Xenon's or in one of the tents at the Shrivers'.

"Yes," it changed our lives," Barbara says. "Invasion of privacy -- that kind of thing. They came here to Princeton, to our house, looked over the teen-age photographs of Chris in the family album and borrowed several so they could better cast the teen-age Clark Kent. Yes, they returned the pictures later -- and gave me a red azalea!"

Reporters began interviewing her immediately, in February, 1977, right after Chris was chosen from some 200 actors who wanted the part.

And the phone began to ring: girls who knew him "when" and wanted to renew what they swore had been a very, very close friendship; members of parent-teacher groups who wanted to raffle off his Superman costume, breathless eight-year-olds who wanted a picture. . . .

"We've been particularly concerned about the possible effect of publicity on Chris's brother, Ben Reeve, only a year younger than Chris and so like him that people stop him on the street in New York, where he lives. And Chris's two step-brothers -- Jeff and Kevin.

It is not unusual for Barbara to have concerns like these. She has always had a close relationship with all the "his," "hers," and "theirs" children in the big Johnson family.

When Chris flew off to London -- by plane, not under his own power -- to start shooting, Barbara says she cried "uncontrollably -- I had terrible pangs!"

"I kept in front of me what Chris had said: 'I need all your support -- my whole life is about to change, and I need to remember Saturday lunches and chicken noodle soup.'

"It bothered him when others commented on his dyed black hair and his new proportions and said they liked him better the old way. We tried to avoid those kinds of comments and accept him and what he was currently working so hard on."

"I knew he'd wanted to be an actor and get to the top, but I never thought it would be this much and this fast!"

News Of The THEATRES

THEY SPELL "MOTHER"

"Put Them All Together." In the words of the old song, when you put all the letters together -- " 'M' is for the many things she gave me" -- you get "M-O-T-H-E-R" and that's what playwright Anne Commire has done in the play that will have its world premiere at McCarter in late January.

Previews are scheduled to start January 23, with the formal opening Friday, January 26. The play will run through February 11.

One of hundreds of scripts submitted to McCarter last year, "Put Them All Together" was presented at last season's "Playwrights at McCarter." Audience response was enthusiastic, and the discussion after the performance among members of the audience, the playwright herself and actors in the cast was so provocative that Ms. Commire, encouraged by McCarter's producing director, continue work on the play.

This summer, it was presented to the National Playwrights Conference at the O'Neill Theatre Center in Waterford, Connecticut.

The play is about the struggle of a young woman to be the perfect wife and mother in a typical American suburban environment. Her affectionate, hard-working husband is out of town on business much of the time. Her best friend, a talented young woman, is wasting her abilities on men and alcohol. And her younger son, a bright and delightful boy, is dangerously overactive and almost beyond her control.

Reservations may be made now at the theatre box-office. It is open from 10 to 6, Monday through Saturday.

The series is supported by a grant from the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation. Anne Commire's "Put Them All Together," McCarter's next major stage production, was first read in the Playwrights-at-McCarter series last spring.

After "Rocky Road," McCarter will present James Childs' "Chieftains" (January 22) and plays still to be announced on February 5, February 19, March 5 and March 19.

"BAGS" BACK

Players are 20. It was back in -- well, never mind, it was a long time ago, in 1958, when The Paper Bag Players were formed to bring imaginative, amusing contemporary theatre to children.

To celebrate, The Paper Bag Players will come onstage at McCarter with a special show called "The Best of the Bags." They'll be performing Friday, January 5, at 4, and Saturday, January 6, at 11 and 2. You can buy tickets now.

Songs, skits, dances, poems -- all drawn from the Bags' full length productions, will be combined with new material focusing, as always, on contemporary themes, urban settings, family customs and life in the big city.

Each show takes exactly one hour. Ideas, dialogue, jokes and fantasies are based on a child's everyday experiences and vision of the world. At the same time, adults themselves are captivated by the wit and charm of the presentations.

Children in the audience are invited to express their opinions and their comments often affect the outcome of a particular scene.

FROM 3 ON UP

At Creative Theatre. Registrations for Creative Theatre's 10-week winter term starting January 8 are now in progress and interested students and parents are invited to call 924-3489 for registration details.

For three-year-olds, Creative Theatre Unlimited will offer a one-hour program from 2:45 to 3:45 on Wednesdays. Four-year-olds will be scheduled on Mondays from 2:30 to 3:30 and kindergarteners from 2-3 p.m. on Thursdays.

The rest of the schedule: first grade, Thursdays 4-5 p.m.; second and third grade, Mondays 4-5:30 p.m.; fourth and fifth grade, Wednesdays 4-5:30; sixth through eighth grade Acting Workshop, Tuesdays 4-5:30; sixth through ninth grade Theatre Workshop, Fridays, 4-6 and high school Acting Lab, Saturdays from 10 until noon.

In addition, CTU will offer a series of Saturday afternoon mini-courses including one a fairy-tales and myths from children three to seven years of age, and a directing workshop for beginners in the high-school age range.

Strikes: Off and On

The labor dispute between McCarter and its stage employees was settled as of December 1, according to an announcement from Edward A. Martenson, managing director of the McCarter Theatre Company. McCarter and Local 116 of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees now have a contract, and picketing has stopped.

Another labor dispute, in which McCarter was not involved at all, affected concert-goers last Wednesday. The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra was booked for the first of four concerts at McCarter, but a labor dispute forced cancellation of the concert.

Members of the symphony's office staff were able to telephone almost all subscribers, and the McCarter box-office reports that fewer than ten showed up for the concert, not knowing it had been cancelled.

Ballot on Two Plays Showing At Intime: One 'Aye,' One 'Nay'

MIDSUMMER IN MISSISSIPPI: Lisa Edelstein and Greg Dale have leading roles in the Tennessee Williams play, "27 Wagons Full of Cotton," in Theatre Intime's current twin bill. (John Simpson photo)

Now running at Murray Theatre are two one-act plays in what Theatre Intime calls "a director's workshop." "The Typists" by Murray Schisgal and "27 Wagons Full of Cotton" by Tennessee Williams are the vehicles chosen to give aspiring directors a chance to practice on a small scale before tackling longer plays. A special price of $2 per ticket recognizes the workshop aspect of the production.

Playgoers who enter a theatre to be entertained or moved, or both, will be partly rewarded and partly disappointed by what Intime offers. The Tennessee Williams play alone is worth the price of admission. "The Typists" tries hard but unfortunately misses.

To tell the good news first: Lisa Fisher has directed "27 Wagons Full of Cotton" to bring out its lurking violence and sultry feeling of suspense. It is midsummer on the porch of Jake Meighan's ramshackle Mississippi cottage. Jake treats his shallow-witted wife Flora now with exaggerated fondness, now with cold brutality, depending on what response he wants from her.

He reveals a character capable of the crime which we gradually perceive he has committed. His unwitting victim and neighbor, Silva Vicarro, left alone with the simple-minded Flora, learns how he has been duped. In a powerful scene he proceeds remorselessly toward a gruesome revenge.

Genuinely Pitiable. The childish woman Flora is the key to the tragedy, and Lisa Edelstein plays her splendidly. The giggling laugh that covers an empty mind, the frantic kissing and the timid hesitancy in front of a stranger, and finally the wordless, whipped reaction to the ordeal she has been through -- all add up to a genuinely pitiable creature.

Greg Dale is excellent as the steely Silva, implacable on his course of vengeance. Richard Greenberg does well with the part of the husband, though perhaps at times he seems too nice for the acts he performs. Karen Eisler's setting, though sketchy, properly suggests decay and dry rot.

The first play, "The Typists," takes us into an outer office where a stenographer (Silvia) and a recently-hired helper (Paul) are employed typing names and addresses from the phone book on to filing cards. A boss whose temper Silvia fears is an unseen presence offstage.

Propinquity loosens their tongues, and they do less and less typing and more and more talking. Each is sorry for himself; soon they become sorry for each other; then they analyze each other, quarrel, make up, quarrel again; and when 5 o'clock comes and the light on stage is too dim to see the typewriter keys anyway they leave together, content in each other's company.

Improbable People. The trouble with the production is that Silvia and Paul look and act like real people, but the playwright has them behave in ways that real people never would. Paul has been at work barely five minutes when he marches in to ask the boss (whom Silvia has warned him about) how soon he can get promoted.

Silvia flies into a tantrum at Paul with almost no provocation; later, when he has made one pass at her (quite suddenly), she nestles into his arms and assumes they will now get married. Even inanimate props disobey the law of logic: Silvia tells Paul early on that she is working on the letter "A" so he can start on "B"; half an hour later, after a minimum of typing, she vocally addresses a card to "Robinson," a bit later to "Weaver," painstakingly referring to what are obviously the beginning pages of the phone book to get their addresses.

I can see only one way in which director Joshua Hammer could have made this play fly, and that is to play it as an outright, fast-paced farce, as unlike real life as possible. Some of the lines got laughs from the audience, but as a whole the play sinks under the weight of real people doing sudden things without any motivation.

The actors do their best. Susan Cayer is an attractive Silvia. Richard Greenberg projects an appealingly frustrated Paul. (He will do better when he stops sawing the air with his left arm to emphasize every point. The same actor, playing Jake in the Williams play, had his gestures well under control.)

All in all, an interesting evening. What seem faults to one person will not seem so to others. Part of the fun of seeing Theatre Intime is to watch the creative process at work. They don't promise professional polish, though not surprisingly they often approach it. But they do provide living theatre, and the current bill is no exception.

"The Typists" and "27 Wagons Full of Cotton" will be repeated this week from Thursday through Saturday at 8:30.

—Herbert McAneny

MUSIC In Princeton

PHS, IN SONG

Winter Concert Next Week. Climaxed by the traditional singing of Bach's "Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light" and the "Hallelujah" chorus from Handel's "Messiah," the annual winter concert of the Princeton High School music department will be given Thursday, December 21. It will be presented in the Princeton University Chapel at 8 p.m.

More than 300 students will take part. Choral works representing a wide variety of musical styles and periods will be sung by the school's choirs. William Trego and Nancianne Parrella are the directors. Portia Sonnenfeld will direct the orchestra and the brass ensemble. Assistant Principal Florence Burke is co-ordinator for the concert.

Admission is free, and the community is welcome to attend. The full program will be announced next week.

POP CONCERT PLANNED

To Benefit Trinity Choir. A Christmas concert will be held at Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street, on Sunday at 8. The 60-voice choir of men, boys and girls will sing traditional carols along with the congregation. The choral works will include two medleys on Carols by Vaughan Williams and Holst, and arrangements of "The Twelve Days of Christmas," "The Twelve Joys of Mary," and "A Spotless Rose" by Howells.

Of particular interest will be the performance of French noels on Trinity's new organ. These will be played by James Litton, organist and director of music, and Frank Boles, assistant organist.

The offering will be for the benefit of the choir's tour of England during the summer of 1980. The choir scheduled to give concerts in various cathedrals in England, to sing for a week of daily services in York Minster, and to make a recording of American Choral Music for Argo Records in St. John's College, Cambridge.

CHRISTMAS WORK SET

By Musical Amateurs. The Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs will hold its annual Christmas open reading on Sunday at 3:45 in the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill Road and Route 206. Prof. J. Merrill Knapp of the Princeton University Music Department will conduct Bach's Christmas Oratorio for chorus, orchestra, and soloists. The soloists will be Suzan Pratt, soprano; Jill Scurato, alto; Tom Faracco, tenor; and Barry Ellison, bass.

This meeting is not a performance. Anyone with musical interest and modest sight reading ability is welcome to participate in the chorus. Music is provided; there is a small charge for those without a yearly membership.

Students are admitted free. For further information call Mrs. Ramus at 924-4266.

5-VOICE MASS SUNDAY

At Vespers Service. The William Byrd "Mass for Five Voices" will be the featured work in this year's Christmas Vespers service Sunday at 3 in the Princeton University Chapel.

Along with the "Christmas Anthem" by Henry Purcell and other music appropriate to the Christmas season, the Byrd work will be sung by the Princeton University Chapel Choir conducted by Prof. Walter Nollner. There is no admission charge, and the public is invited.

Long recognized as one of the greatest monuments of Renaissance music, the Byrd five-voice mass is one of the most difficult works ever attempted by the University Choir. It will be sung unaccompanied, with small choir alternating with the full ensemble.

The Purcell anthem will be conducted by Sheila H. Sullivan, assistant choirmaster. Soloists will be Brian Collett and Nicholas Wright, counter-tenors, and James Parham III '81, bass. Accompaniment will be provided by a small string ensemble plus organ.

TWO TO PERFORM

In Joint Recital. Two Princeton University students, violinist Eve LaPlante and soprano Linda K. Estman, will give a joint recital on Saturday, at 8:30 in Woolworth Center, under the auspices of the Friends of Music.

Ms. LaPlante, with Jeffrey Farrington, pianist, will perform works by Beethoven, Schumann and Bartok. A junior, majoring in English, she studied violin with Roger Shermont of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. She performed for five years with the Greater Boston Yourth Orchestra and was also a member of the New England Conservatory Chamber Orchestra.

Ms. Eastman, a senior majoring in religion, is also music director of the Princeton Katzenjammers, a 16-member a-capella campus group. With John Rink, pianist, she will perform works by Khatchaturian, Moussorgsky, Faure, among others. She is currently studying voice with Shirlee Emmons at Princeton.

CHRISTMAS EVENTS SET

By Choir College. Various choral groups at Westminster Choir College will present a variety of Christmas music this coming week, to which the public is invited.

The 18-member Westminster Madrigal Singers, under the direction of Michael Clark, will give a Christmas program Friday at 8 in the college's Playhouse. "A Ceremony of Carols," by Britten; "Christmas Day," Gustav Holst; "Gloria" from the Christmas Cantata, Daniel Pinkham; as well as songs and carols by Healey Willan, Charles Black, M. Leontovich, Bruckner, and Thomas Morley will be on the program.

The annual Messiah sing in will be held Sunday at 9 p.m.

University Orchestra, in Concert on Friday, Has Grown in Stature with Passage of Years

Audiences who have followed the Princeton University Orchestra over the years must have noticed its transformation in the last decade from a satisfactory, often excellent group into an excellent, often striking ensemble. A Princeton University Orchestra has been on the scene for more than 40 years, but in its earlier days, was hardly of the caliber it has now achieved.

Not that it limited itself to easy repertoire. On December 5, 1953, conducted by Russell Ames Cook, it played Mozart's overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," as it will this Friday under Michael Pratt, 25 years later. This time, however, it anticipates a fully-staged performance of that opera scheduled for next spring.

Other worthy performances from past programs were symphonies by Haydn, Mozart and Schubert, and Beethoven's "Egmont" overture. But many concerts in the late 40's and into the 50's were filled out by items drawn from less prestigious echelons of the orchestral literature: Cimerosa's overture to "Gli Orazii e Curazii," a sinfonia from a Bach cantata, an arrangement by Sir Thomas Beecham of music from Handel's "The Faithful Shepherd," the overture to Cherubini's "Der Wassertraeger," and so on.

More Student Representation. In fact, the personnel of the orchestra was changeable and seemed to require supplementation from outside the student body. In one concert in 1948, only 32 of 55 players were students. Today, thanks in part to a more concentrated effort to find competent players in each entering class (or even among applicants before they arrive), the orchestra is almost fully staffed by undergraduates.

Orchestra programming under Robert Freeman, conductor from 1966 to 1968, began to increase in depth and difficulty. Some of his concerts included Brahms' "Variations on a Theme of Haydn," Mussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," Stravinsky's Concerto for Piano and Winds, and Mahler's 4th Symphony. Something of a watershed was reached on May 11, 1973, when the orchestra, with conductor Peter Westergaard, performed Beethoven's 9th Symphony.

Alexander Hall was packed. It was a symbolic arrival, and subsequent programs have usually included riskier pieces than they had before.

Other indications of the orchestra's progress can be traced in the operas that have been mounted in the last decade. The first production of the Princeton University Opera Theater was Mozart's "The Impresario," a one-act singspiel, staged in the rehearsal room at Woolworth Center in 1967. In 1970, productions moved to Theater Intime, where Mozart's "The Abduction from the Seraglio," Rossini's "The Turk in Italy," Berlioz' "Beatrice and Benedick," and Britten's "The Rape of Lucretia" were given over the years.

Last spring saw a leap into a new league, when Mozart's "The Magic Flute was lavishly staged in Alexander Hall under Michael Pratt. Here was an infinitely more ambitious endeavor, one of the cornerstones of the operatic literature, taken on as a project that would be discharged well, not merely "as well as possible."

If today's orchestra is generally "excellent, often striking," the opera had to be deemed "striking, often sensational." The tradition will continue with Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," scheduled for performance next April in Alexander Hall.

This Friday at 8:30 in Alexander Hall, the orchestra will play the overture to "Figaro," "Romeo Alone and the Festival at the Capulets" from Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet," and the Concerto for Violin by Alban Berg, with soloist Cyrus Stevens. The final dress rehearsal of this piece, in Alexander Hall on Thursday at 8 is open to the public and will include remarks about the piece by Prof. Milton Babbitt. Anyone who has not followed the Orchestra over the years might like to start with this concert.

CAPTAIN AHAB

... and Others. One man in his time plays many parts, and for present purposes, that one man is Jack Aranson who plays 13 parts in the script he has arranged from Herman Melville's novel, "Moby Dick."

He will bring his one-man production of the classic to McCarter Theatre on Sunday, January 7, at 8 p.m. The performance is part of a national tour underwritten as a community service by Mobil. All proceeds will go to McCarter Theatre. Tickets are now on sale at the box-office.

"Once you strip away the whaling technique and the professionalism of going to sea, 'Moby Dick' is a great stage piece," Mr. Aranson says, "its chapters are written like scenes in a play."

"To do it," he adds, you've got to be in good shape and have big lungs. My voice has become enormous!"

The actor, Irish by descent, was trained at London's Old Vic. He has played a wide variety of roles around the world, served as director of Shakespeare at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts and was the head of his own repertory company in San Francisco.

NEW PLAY TO BE READ

In "Open Forum." A new play called "Rocky Road," by Donna de Matteo, will launch McCarter's second season of Playwrights-at-McCarter with a reading at The Acting Studio, 185 Nassau Street.

Carols by Candlelight

The Princeton University Chapel will hold its annual Candlelight Service of Lessons and Carols on Thursday evening at 8. The service, to be led by Dean Ernest Gordon, is open to the public.

Participating as readers will be Donna Packard, John Spriegel and Anne Carter, Princeton University students; Frank Ayala, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs; R. Claire Guthrie, Acting University Counsel; Edward J. Champlin, Assistant Professor of Classics; and Gail Gibson, Assistant Professor of English. The organist will be James Parham III.

After the service a reception will be held in Murray-Dodge Hall to which all the members of the congregation are invited.

All sessions are free, and no reservations are necessary. The program is designed to act as an open forum, where writers, critics and members of the audience may express their opinions about the play.

"It is the opportunity to be in on the most crucial stage of the playwright's writing, its initial phase, and to voice one's opinion," says Ben Levit, director of the project for McCarter. Michael Earley, McCarter's literary advisor, is also involved in the project.

PLAYERS' PLAY CAST

"Taste of Honey" is Next. The Princeton Community Players have cast their season's second play, "A Taste of Honey," by Shelagh Delaney, which will open on January 12 for a three-weekend, eight-performance run.

"A Taste of Honey" was chosen as the best foreign play of the year by the New York Drama Critics Circle in 1961. Written by a 19-year old English girl, it grew out of her experience in an industrial town in her native Lancashire.

Don Gordon is directing. Mr. Gordon has recently directed "Follies" at the King's Row Restaurant theatre in Rahway, and he is acting at the same place in "Detective Story." Included in the cast which will appear in the Players' theatre at 171 Broadmead are Nina Mankin, Roger Lipman and Rodney Brisco of Princeton, Stella Evans of Pennington, and Wayne Weiser of Trenton.

300 TO PARTICIPATE

In John Witherspoon Concert. More than 300 John Witherspoon Middle School musicians will perform choral and instrumental music for their annual Winter Concert Monday evening at 8 in the school auditorium.

GREENS, TREES, PLANTS

Traditional evergreen trees, weaths, roping and blooming plants bring fresh, natural beauty to the home at Christmas, and Perna's has many beautiful choices. Evergreen wreaths, plain or decorated with pine cones, Christmas ornaments and bright ribbons are 8" to 16" in diameter. Natural straw wreaths are plain or decorated with dried flowers, burlap or plaid ribbons. Wire frames, ornaments, pine cones, ribbons and ready-made bows are also available for people who wish to make their own. Door swags, ribbon-bowed and decorated evergreen sprays, are informal door decorations.

Evergreen grave blankets, rustic cedar boxes with greens and holly, and small arrangements of dried or artificial flowers relieve winter's somberness and honor the memory of those dear to us.

Roping of laurel, white pine, and princess pine makes festoons for stairs, doorways, lamp posts. Fragrant evergreen boughs of silver tip fir, Noble fir, white pine, spruce, hemlock and holly branches bright with berries or variegated Oregon holly have many decorative uses. Cut Christmas trees include blue spruce and Scotch pine, and blue spruce wreaths are also available.

Also found at Perna's, blooming plants are traditional poinsettias with single blooms or 6 to 8 blooms per plant, cyclamens, gloxinias, Jerusalem cherries, kolanchoes, pepper plants, Christmas cactus and African violets. Foliage plants are burro tails in hanging baskets, or Norfolk Island Pines, that can be decorated like small Christmas trees for shut-ins. Ivy trained to grow in a wreath, variegated ivy and many other plants can be decorated for Christmas gifts with bows and little ornaments.

Dried arrangements and lovely silk flowers -- rosebuds, full-blown roses, carnations, and chrysanthemums make long-lasting gifts. Fresh flower arrangements can be made to order and also baskets of holly and greens. Wicker baskets and ceramic cache-pots can hold gifts of plants.

Did you know that a football team once changed coaches right in the middle of a game? ... That's how the famous old coach Jimmy Conzelman got his first coaching job ... It happened when Conzelman was a player in the National Football League in 1921 ... During a game that season, he was in the huddle when a substitute ran in and told Conzelman that the coach on the bench just had a fight with the owner of the team ... The owner fired the coach on the spot and appointed Conzelman, who thus became the only football coach in history appointed while a game was in progress.

Few fans know that in the early days of football, touchdowns counted for nothing! ... In those days, a touchdown merely gave a team tbe right to try to "convert" the touchdown into a score by kicking the ball through the goal posts ... This feature is still retained in today's point-after-touchdown which is sometimes still called a "conversion."

Tiger Five Improves as Carril Shuffles Lineup; Fordham Here Thursday, Rutgers (TV) Saturday

For Princeton basketball fans, watching Pete Carril juggle his starting lineup in a season when the veteran coach is experimenting more with his personnel than has ever been necessary in his dozen years here, the experience is somewhat akin to attending a clinic. Like the patterns that emerge when a kaleidoscope is twisted, the result is often appealing but never the same.

When the starting five (Neil Christel, Roger Schmitt, Bob Roma, John Lewis, Steve Mills) played a wholly unsatisfactory first half against Seton Hall, and was down by 51-39 shortly after action resumed, only Roma withstood the wholesale substitution binge that Carril launched. In the next six minutes, the Tigers outscored the Pirates, 17 to 5, drawing even at 56-all through the solid efforts of the four reserves who joined Roma: forwards Randy Melville and Steve Hilton, guards Dave Blatt and Tim Olah. The Orange and Black eventually lost, 67-65, but largely because the starting five had given too much away.

Against Manhattan Saturday, Christel and Mills held their starting assignments but Melville had taken over for Schmitt at one of the forward positions and Blatt joined Mills in the back court, with Lewis on the bench. This may or may not be the starting combination when Fordham comes to Jadwin Gym Thursday night at 8, but it did the trick well enough in its first outing together so that the half-time score was Princeton 41, Manhattan 24.

Five others eventually played in a reserve capacity: Olah, Lewis, Tom Young, senior forward Steve Hilton and sophomore guard Marty Mannion. For a while, Lewis switched from guard to forward, with Roma there also and Young at center. In contrast to the frequently uninspired play during the first 27 minutes against Seton Hall, the Tigers were generally in charge of Manhattan, winning their first meeting against the Jaspers since 1919, 76 to 59.

Man with a Mission. The game's standout was sophomore Randy Melville, the Princeton Day product whose home is in Trenton. Awarded a varsity starting assignment for the first time, he did much to pocket it permanently with a demonstration of combined aggressiveness and ability that had to appeal highly to his somewhat harrassed coach.

Two steals by Melville in the early action were followed by solo baskets and in the first five minutes of the second half, he strung in 10 straight Princeton points, four on a pair of driving layups and one on a slam-dunk that the crowd loved. In all, he played 36 minutes, more than any teammate, and was high man with 18 on 9-for-14 shooting. He also stayed well with his man on defense, Manhattan's Jojo Walters, who came to Jadwin with a 27-point average. Walters needed 22 shots to make nine field goals, adding four free throws for a 22-point total.

Truly wretched foul-shooting, especially for a Carril-coached team, combined with a persistent tendency to send the opposition to the free-throw line, served to beat the Tigers in their game earlier in the week against Seton Hall. Able to outshoot the visitors from the floor, 27 to 23, they managed only 11 of 19 from the line and when the Pirates' connected on 7 of 8 in the last four minutes to run their total to 21 of 29, they managed to keep two points of what had once been a 12-point lead.

Randy Melville
A Welcome Arrival from PDS

Roma had the best night of his career, collecting 29 points on 11 field goals (out of 21 attempts) and adding seven foul shots. Young added 16, but after these two gave the Tigers 45 points between them, no one else could make it to double figures. Melville, however, earned his starting berth against Manhattan with nine points and some fine all-court play.

SPORTS In Princeton

Rutgers Game on TV. Villanova at the Palestra was on the Tigers' schedule Tuesday night, with the Wildcats heavily favored after having knocked Rugers out of the nation's top 20 with an 86-67 pasting. The Wildcats are one of the few teams to hold an edge over Carril, having won six of the last 11 meetings between the teams since he became coach here.

Fordham, a 72-50 victim of the Orange and Black in New York last winter, is rebuilding under ex-Columbia coach Tom Penders after an unsatisfactory 8-18 mark resulted in his predecessor's disappearance. The Rams return nine lettermen and four starters, and can field a seven-foot freshman, Dud Tongal, who could provide an interesting matchup against 6-t1 Tom Young.

Princeton will head for Piscataway Saturday, with the game to be televeised over Public Television, Channels 23 and 52. Rutgers has had its problems in the past fortnight, losing not only to Villanova on the road but to Lafayette at home, but will be fired for revenge aainst the Tigers after having been upset here last December, 68 to 57.

That was the night that Young thoroughly outplayed the Scarlet's standout center, Jim Bailey, coming off the bench to produce 16 points and grab five invaluable rebounds. Now, Young is still on the bench when the game begins and Bailey is discussed as an All-American and potential first-round NBA draft choice.

The Scarlet has lost Hollis Copeland from last year's 24-7 team, but starts 6-7 Abdel Anderson and Rodney Duncan, a skilled 6-0 guard, with Bailey and has a dozen lettermen on its deep squad. The game is a sure-fire bet to draw several more thousand Rutgers undergraduates than the Scarlet football team and Arizona State will that afternoon in the first Garden State Bowl at the Meadowlands Stadium.

Next week will be marked by the first return to Princeton since his coaching career ended here of Butch van Breda Kolff, the man who had the good fortune to be at Princeton at the same time Bill Bradley was. Van Breda Kolff, a peripatetic operative who has returned from professional ranks to college coaching, is in his second year at the University of New Orleans, where he took his players to a solid 21-6 mark last winter.

Van Breda Kolff, a Princeton alumnus who played for a while with the New York Knicks, coached here from 1962-67, winning four Ivy titles in a five-year stretcb and once taking the Tigers to the NCAA semi-finals. Carril, who was his choice as his successor, would have some of the pain of the rough going this year mitigated by a victory over his friend of more than a quarter century, whom he succeeded as coach at Lafayette before doing so a decade and a half later here.

SKATERS NEED VICTORY

But Road Ahead Is Rough. Unable to dcfeat any of the four Division I opponents it has met so far, Princeton's hockey team heads into another hornet's nest Friday when it plays league-leading Brown at Providence. The Bruins opened their season with a victory over defending champion Cornell at Ithaca and have since topped Yale and Harvard at home.

A 14-9-1 record last winter enabled the Rhode Island sextet to enter the eight-team ECAC playoffs, in which it reached the consolation finals before losing to Boston University. Brown has 13 lettermen back and a new coach in Paul Schilling, who is

Skill—and a Little Bit of Luck—Lead To Winning Color Television in Contest

When Yale scored a touchdown against Princeton in the Bowl last month with less than a minute left to play, Vicki Bauman of 3 Monroe Court had guessed the score of the Princeton game right on the nose -- 23 to 7.

Trouble was, the Elis still had a try for the extra point coming. Luck, however, rode with Mrs. Bauman -- the ball hit the left goal post and bounced back, holding the score at 23-7.

Even then, she was not in the clear as the eventual winner of the annual contest sponsored by First Jersey Savings, in which a color television set goes to the entrant naming the actual score. Six other contestants had also known that the placekick for the extra point would hit the post and bounce back.

So Mrs. Bauman's name and those of the other six were put in a bowl (naturally) and luck continued to ride with her.

Vicki Bauman

Her name was drawn, and now she has the color TV.

The unlucky half dozen and 194 other runners-up will get a bulldog or a tiger (stuffed, to eliminate the cost of raw meat.) For their names, see page 20B.

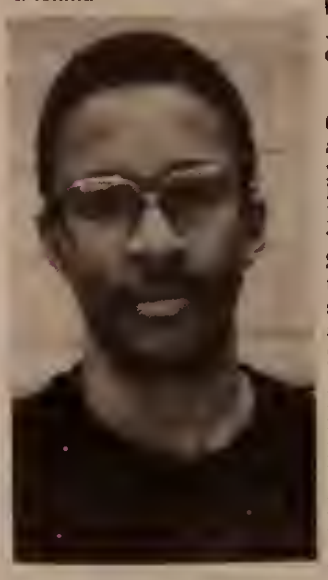
blessed with an All-American goalie in Mike Laycock.

The difference in net-minding ability alone is likely to be enough to tip the balance against the struggling Tigers, who yielded 14 goals while losing twice by one-sided margins on their Boston excursion last weekend. The 4-0 loss to no. 1-ranked B.U. was not surprising; it was the 10-4 shellacking at the hands of a previously-winless Northeastern sextet that was particularly disappointing.

In that contest, Princeton jumped out to a 2-0 lead when freshman Drew Forbes scored at 5:12 of the first period and was followed less than a minute later by senior Trevor Kilburn. The home team, loser of its first three games to Merrimack, Providence and Boston College, then evened the count before the period ended and took a 5-3 margin in the middle round.

Senior Craig Treshan got Princeton's goal in that session and added another in the closing minutes -- a short-handed effort. But the walls came tumbling down at the Princeton end of ancient Boston Arena, where the victors beat Tiger goalie Bob Mann five more times.

Short of experience, Mann was called upon to stop only 32 shots but when 10 of them got by, his percentage was a low .688. The losers had 26 shots on target.



17 IN OPENER: Peter Sharpless, a 6-3 sophomore, pumped in 17 points in Princeton High's opening basketball game last week, an 81-63 loss to Franklin Township.

Shutout Recorded. The Orange and Black managed to avoid being blanked all last year, but could not turn on the light in Saturday's 4-0 loss to B.U. which raised its record to 7-0 at the Tigers' expense. Scott Sillcox, in the goal for this one, was credited with 33 saves in a good showing against the national champions.

After Brown this Friday, Princeton will make a rare midwestern appearance, playing a pair of games the following weekend against Minnesota. This Big Ten team won 22 and tied one against 14 losses last winter, and no surcease appears on the horizon for Princeton.

These two games will be the last before Christmas for the Orange and Black. Princeton will play in a holiday tournament December 27-29 at Troy, N.Y., a round robin against Rensselaer Polytech, St. Lawrence and the Air Force.

PHS FIVE PLAYS WELL

But Loses Opener to Franklin. "The final period did us in," agreed Princeton High School coach Marvin Trotman.

"We played well until the last four minutes of the ball game. We lost our composure. We didn't stick to our patterns; we were in too much of a hurry to take the lead."

His Little Tigers were down only by a point at the time, Trotman commented, but Franklin Township took advantage of the composure-less PHS team and turned the game into a rout. The home-team Warriors won, 81-63.

PHS will travel to Allentown High Friday for a 4 p.m. contest and then will oppose Hun School, which has gotten off to a fast start led by former Ewing High standout Arvie Powell. The game will be played Tuesday at Hun, starting at 4.

All seven players used by Trotman scored. Kevin Robinson led the list with 19 while Peter Sharpless had 17. Bob Flippin added nine, Kelly Robinson six, Shaun Tobin five and Jeff Marshall and Kieran Esposito, four each. Franklin placed five in double figures, Mike Henderson leading all scorers with 21.

The Little Tigers had no problem with the Franklin press, which Trotman said surprised him -- and neither did they get killed in rebounding. "They all did well," said Trotman. "If the game had ended after three periods, we might have won it."

Franklin (1-0) has a decent team, Trotman continued. "This was a tough opener for us." And again the vote of confidence from Trotman . . . "considering this was our opening-game jitters, I thought we did very well."

HOME OPENER NEXT

For PHS Wrestlers. A Princeton High School wrestling team which performed better than coach Tom Murray had anticipated, although losing to Lawrenceville School, 38-20, last week, will engage in its opening home dual meet this Wednesday evening.

Woodrow Wilson will be the opponent in a match starting at 8. A jayvee match will start at 6:30.

"We're supposed to be inexperienced this year but we did a little better than I anticipated," said Murray of the Lawrenceville match. "It was one of those things that could have gone either way."

He pointed out that two-year veteran Bruce Cobb did not wrestle (he has been recovering from pneumonia but is expected to be ready for Woodrow Wilson) and that heavyweight Marco Nini was ahead of Hammy Davis, 6-1, and had him in a pinning position before he himself was turned over and pinned. "A couple of more seconds in Nini's match, and if Cobb had gotten us six, you can see how it would have changed the score," Murray continued.

The Larries grabbed the match by posting pins in the last three divisions for 18 points. The high spot for PHS came when captain Matt Wilkinson pinned Jay Muscarelle in 56 seconds to tie the match at 6 after freshman Brian O'Grady, wrestling in his first match, was pinned in opening 101-pound match by Shawn Lynch.

Other winners for PHS were Mike Santoro, who captured a 5-3 decision in the 148-pound class and Brent Robinson, who, Murray said, "looked good and bad in spots" in capturing a wide-open 12-10 decision in the 141-pound class. Bob Schmidt and Pat Wallace battled to a 2-2 drawn, after Wallace scored in the last minute of action. Schmidt is a notoriously slow starter at the outset of the season, Murray reported. "He is one who is going to have to win for us."

Gary Carnevale, a veteran from last year's 16-1 varsity, dropped a 5-2 decision to Nick Corcoran, described by Murray as Lawrenceville's number one wrestler. "Corcoran tied him up with his legs, but Carnevale wrestled a solid match," said Murray.

Also suffering losses for PHS were Eric Schwartz, 115-pound class; Tony Cedino, filling in for Cobb at 122; and Sean Kennan at 129 pounds.

At a special drawing, held at First Jersey Savings' Princeton Office, Vicki Bauman of Princeton became the Grand Prize Winner. As the winner, Ms. Bauman will be awarded a 19" portable color TV. In addition, handsomely made stuffed bulldogs and tigers were awarded as bonus prizes for 200 runners-up.

*The runners-up were determined by the closest guess to the actual score, in accordance with the rules of one winner per family. Where duplicate scores were involved, the winner was decided by a random drawing

Powell Replaces Payton at Hun and Leads Team to Victory In Peddie Tournament, Scoring 71 Points in Three Games

Ron who?

It hasn't reached that point yet, but Arvie Powell gave every indication last week that he can fill the shoes of Hun star Ron Payton, who scored more than 2,000 points in his four-year career that ended last year at Hun.

Playing with a team that is inexperienced and still learning to work together as a unit, Powell tossed in 71 points in three games to bring Hun the championship of the Peddie Invitational Tournament, where he was named the tourney's Most Valuable Player. In Hun's opening 53-42 triumph over Blair Academy, Powell, the 6-2 former 1,000-point standout from Ewing High School, hit for 24 to give him 95 for the week. As a result Hun, 24-4 last year, is off to a fine 4-0 start this year.

"He's definitely our leader," said Hun coach Dave Leete of Powell. "He handles the ball well and he shoots very well." Not only Powell, though, but "everyone rose to the occasion," claimed Leete in bringing Hun its first Peddie Tournament win. Last year, Hun was eliminated in the first round.

Hun will have little time to savour its accomplishments. It will enter the Hill Tournament in Pottstown, Pa., Thursday, which includes teams from New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New England. The only common opponent from the Peddie Tournament will be Lawrenceville School. On Tuesday afternoon, Hun will play host to Princeton High School.

Hun Fast from the Gate. In the championship game with Peddie Sunday, Hun got off to a quick 7-0 start and led 15-2 after the first period. Powell was 6-for-9 in the first half and ended with 10-for-17 from the floor, and 22 points.

Powell received steady support from 6-6 Mark Leadem, a teammate of Powell's at Ewing who did not play basketball after his freshman year. Leadem used his height to dominate both boards and was 4-for-4 from the floor. He ended with nine points. Garrett Franzoni added six and Ken Stoddard, five.

Actually, the final contest was Hun's easiest game. In the semi-final round, it had to go into overtime before eliminating a good Princeton Day School team, 44-39. PDS had been one of the tournament favorites along with defending champion Collegiate of New York, which had entered the event unbeaten in its last 25 games. In its opening game Friday night, Hun needed a jumper from Powell with six seconds left to edge Loomis School of Windsor, Conn., 50-49.

Against PDS, Hun had engineered a 10-point lead but when Powell had to sit down with 5:13 left in the third quarter after he picked up his third foul, the Panthers tied the game at 29 with 6:30 left to play. Then with 1:40 left and the game tied again at 35, PDS went into a four-corner stall; however an attempted layup by Jamie Bartolomei at the buzzer missed.

In the overtime, Hun converted two quick baskets, including one by Powell, to grab the lead for good. "We played a good basketball team," said Leete, who described the contest as "a great game." Powell scored 23 in the win.

PDS had advanced to the semis with a 60-54 win over Adelphi; in the other semi-final, Peddie ousted Lawrenceville, 51-41.

48 of 50. In the opening round, Powell, Stoddard and Mark Delorenzo combined for all but two of Hun's 50 points, Powell getting 26 and DeLorenzo and Stoddard 11 each. In other opening games, Lawrenceville ended Collegiate's 25-game streak with a 51-46 win, Peddie topped Chestnut Hill, 44-37, and PDS stopped Adelphi.

Powell's stats in the first regular season game with Blair had him connecting on 10 of 21 shots and 24 points and grabbing six rebounds. As expected, Hun's play was a little ragged and it was guilty of 24 turnovers. "You have to remember, pointed out Leete, "that this was our first game and the players on last year's team had played together for four years."

Four games do not a season make, but the smile on Dave Leete's face after the first week of action is unmistakable.

PDS WINS 1, LOSES 1

In Peddie Tourney. If its first two games of the season are any indication, the Princeton Day basketball team is going to be well versed in playing in overtime. Last week in the Peddie Tournament, the Panthers split a pair of extra-session contests to open their season.

Friday night against Adelphi, the Blue and White led most of the way until the final period, fell behind, and then came back to tie and produce an overtime. In that session, Carl Hill hit for two baskets and James Cox put in six free throws to give PDS a 60-54 win. Hill had 25 points.

Against Hun the following night, PDS lagged behind by eight to 10 points through the first half and into the third

Nets, Globetrotters Here

Basketball fans who like variation from the college game can mark two dates on their calendars for unusual attractions in Jadwin Gym. On Friday, January 26, the New York Nets and the New Orleans Jazz of the National Basketball Association will play a regular season game there, and on Thursday, February 15, the Harlem Globetrotters will make one of their colorful exhibition appearances.

The NBA contest will be a home game for the Nets, who normally play in Rutgers' Piscataway field house but have encountered a schedule conflict there. It will be a Jadwin Gym "first": the New York Knicks have played exhibition games here but no regular-season NBA game has been staged in Princeton.

Returning to home ice on Friday, the Panthers found conditions little better on their own rink, as heavy rain outside produced considerable fog inside. Play was stopped several times while all skaters circled the rink to try and lift some of the denser patches.

Jensen got PDS a 1-0 advantage in the first period, but Pingry tied it up later aided by the fog. PDS was working on a power play, when the puck came out across the Pingry blue line. Neither PDS defenseman saw it in the fog. A Pingry player spotted it, skated the length of the ice, and fired the puck past Maltese tying the score.

PDS played its best hockey in the second period, according to coach Harry Rulon-Miller, and it produced goals by Doug Matthews and Drezner. Ward Taggart and Sweeney tallied in the third. Sweeney's goal was set up nicely by Jensen who dug the puck out along the boards and passed to Wilkinson, producing a two on one break. Wilkinson faked a shot and passed over to Sweeney who put the puck in the nets.

period, but rallied late in the third. In the fourth quarter, it led by two or three until Hun tied it with 90 seconds left. PDS played for the last shot, but Jamie Bartolomei missed a short jumper and again the Panthers found themselves in overtime.

This time, however, Hun jumped off to an early advantage and PDS never caught up, losing 44-39.

Coach Alan Taback credited his team with plenty of effort, but a lack of execution. "We couldn't generate any team offense," Taback commented. "We haven't blended as a team; our movements are frenetic rather than smooth."

Taback, who used eight players, all of whom contributed, is going to work on getting more flow into the offense. "We need to take advantage of Carl's (Hill) ability to make things happen," he noted.

Delbarton on Wednesday, away, and St. Benedict's (Jersey City), home, are the scheduled games this week on Wednesday and Friday. Neither should prove too difficult, if the Panthers continue to improve. On Friday, Dec. 22 in their own gym, PDS will get a chance to avenge the loss to Hun.

PDS SEXTET ON ROAD

In New England. Victorious in its first two contests this season, the Princeton Day hockey team is in New England this week for the St. Mark's Tournament.

Odds are the Panthers will find the opposition considerably tougher than Conestoga High School and Pingry, whom they beat last week, but it's still good to have two wins already chalked up.

Holderness (N.H.) School will be the Blue and White's first opponent is the eight-team tourney, and a victory there would put it in the semi-finals Thursday night against the winner of the St. Mark's-Westminster game. Other schools competing are Loomis, Salisbury, St. George's, and Middlesex.

PDS will not play again until after Christmas, meeting the Alumni on Dec. 26, and then entering the Brick Tourney a day later.

In last week's action, the weather provided more formidable problems than either team. Visiting Conestoga High School, outside of Philadelphia, the Panthers found soft, mushy ice that produced many odd bounces of the puck.

Nonetheless, the Blue and White scored in every period to come away with a convincing, if not very artistic, triumph, 4-0. Captain Mike Shannon scored in the first period, followed by John Drezner and Andy Jensen in the second and Kent Wilkinson in the third. Phil Maltese was barely tested in the goal by the home team.

Before you lease any luxury car, drive one of ours.

Our Peugeot 504 SL has much the same roominess you'll find in a full-size luxury sedan. And many of the same luxuries, as standard equipment: Fully reclining front bucket seats, power steering, power disc brakes, electric front windows, tinted glass, two-stage metallic paint, and a sliding sunroof.

Our 504 Wagon can carry 1,290 pounds—that's over half a ton—without staggering under the load. That's because it's built as a wagon from the ground up. The Peugeot Wagon is a foot longer than our sedan, with a six-inch longer wheelbase. It has a heavy-duty solid rear axle and two coil springs over each rear wheel.

Both the sedan and wagon give you an incredibly smooth ride that you have to feel to believe. And both cars give you your choice of engines: gas or diesel.

Whichever Peugeot suits you best, we can arrange for a lease that's custom tailored for your needs.

And if you can't decide which Peugeot suits you best, we'd be happy to have you test drive them all.

Superman's Mother

On Stage at 9. Chris made his first stage appearance at McCarter when he was 9 in a Gilbert & Sullivan production. He was in plays at Princeton Day School, usually directed by Herbert McAneny, all during his years there.

He was in and out of theatre, TV soaps and the other slots reserved for struggling young actors when he was cast as Katharine Hepburns' grandson in the Enid Bagnold play "A Matter of Gravity." Hepburn herself predicted he'd make it big, Barbara recalls.

Well, has it changed him? Is he still the Chris Reeve we used to know? That's the question everyone asks Barbara.

"No one can go through life without some changes," she replies briskly, "and all that nutriment he has to guzzle between his four full meals a day and the weight-lifting in the gym has changed his collar from a 16½ to 17½! But I'm very, very proud of the way he has handled himself. He still has that cockroach-ridden apartment in New York, the same clothes so far as I can tell."

And with a big, glowing smile she tells about last summer's trip to London, paid for by Chris, for herself, Tris and their 15-year-old son, Kevin. (Jeff stayed behind to work in a hockey camp but Chris has promised him a June trip to watch shooting for "Superman II".)

"The stunt man, assistant directors, make-up people, special effects crew . . . ! It was the most moving thing to us, the way all of them commented on his extraordinary patience. Richard Donner, the director, has said, 'If there's a God in heaven, he gave me Chris Reeve.'"

Cause and Effect. Well, has it changed Superman's mother? (She winces at the inevitable "Supermom.").

At the Princeton-Middlebury hockey game here in town, Chris was surrounded by little kids, and solemnly shook the hands of all of them including a shy ten-year-old girl whose father finally had to say, "Would you shake my daughter's hand?"

"It was curious to watch," she recalls. "He sat there, sort of hunched down into his coat -- 'It gives me a funny feeling,' he said." At the Shrivers' dinner party, "I found I had to handle conversation with Alan Greenspan all by myself -- he was my dinner partner and they put Tris at another table!"

"Fabulous!" is her description of the weekend. No, she didn't meet President Carter, but Chris did. And Henry Kissinger and Barbara Walters and Roger Mudd and ambassadors too numerous to count, and the elegance of the Japanese embassy. . . and home to Princeton to find the house at 50 degrees and a broken furnance.

A Parting Tribute. "It was full of cheers and laughter and tears, and if I live to be 80, there couldn't be another weekend so thrilling."

Capped, maybe, by the farewell of the chauffeur assigned to Barbara and Tris.

"'You have a mighty fine son -- he's got a fine head on his shoulders.' That's what he said to me."

She knew that all along. And although the weekend was thrilling, there are motherly apprehensions still -- What will the critics say? Where will Chris's career go? Can he remain unchanged?

Tris, as step-father, is more relaxed about it all without the qualms and pressures, and is enjoying himself enormously.
